Grace Notes: Love GROWS

S is for Social Justice

I've always thought that the acid test of the value of a church is whether there would be an outcry in the community - the non-church-goers - if our church wasn't there anymore.

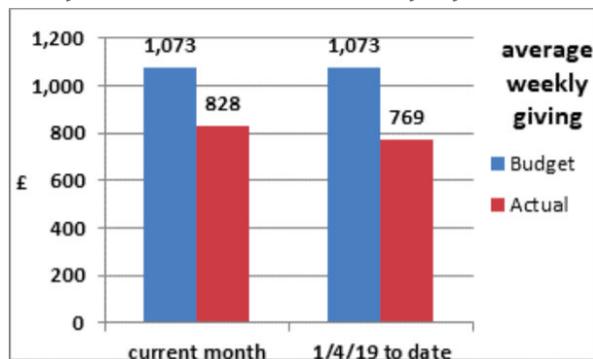

Social justice is when people have the ability to realise their potential in the society where they live. That, we would assert is core to our mission. Mission is something that you do because of who you are ... When you (we) know who we really are we will, as a spiritual community keep asking ourselves, what else can we do on a no-strings-attached basis to make a difference to the lives of the people who live in the community. Why? Because we have come to see ourselves as people who elevate others.

Despite all the scaremongering from our religious brothers and sisters, there seems very little evidence to suggest that the grace message leads to a life of licentiousness. On the contrary, "Your [His] people will offer themselves freely on the day of your [His] power" (Ps.110:3). Many have feared that if you take away the law from the Christian, the result will be lawlessness. But law-free and lawless are not the same thing. While fears that we will use our new-found freedom as "an opportunity for the flesh" are unfounded, it is sad that we do not always move on to, "instead through love serve one another" (Gal 5:13). We have entered into the revelation - the joy of The gospel which is the realisation that it is not Christ in me for my benefit, it is Christ As me for the benefit of others.

Average Weekly Giving

Thank you for your continued financial support. As you can see from the graph we are behind budget. The gap between our fixed overheads and our income has widened in recent months. You don't need to be alarmed; the Lord provides. We would only ask you to be open and prayerful as to if, how, and when you too might want to participate in the ministry of giving and receiving.
